

DEFERRAL / TRANSFER POLICY

- If you face an unavoidable personal or professional exigency that affects your ability to continue the program, you may submit a formal deferral / transfer request via support request or by formally sending an email to Support Agentic AI JHU . The decision to defer/transfer should be made carefully, as it directly impacts your learning outcomes.
- Once your deferral / transfer is approved, access to the program, including mentored learning sessions, will be suspended. You will not receive regular program communications, except for essential updates related to your deferral or changes in candidature.
- To be eligible for a deferral / transfer, you must have paid the first installment of the program fee in addition to the admission fee. If the payment is not made, your deferral / transfer request will be denied, and your candidature will be placed on hold or potentially canceled.
- You are allowed up to 1 deferral / transfer within 9 months from the date of enrollment. Any additional deferrals / transfer beyond this limit will incur a fee of USD 500.
- Medical deferrals / transfers must be supported with relevant documentation.
- Special cases not covered by this policy will be handled on a case-by-case basis.
- When returning from a deferral, you will resume the program from the module you left off.
- If you wish to maintain access to the Learning Management System during the deferral period, the full program fee must be paid in advance, though this is discouraged as it can impact your learning experience.
- Deferral/Transfer requests typically take 5-7 working days for approval after review by the program office.
- In cases of prolonged disengagement (e.g., missing two consecutive mentored learning sessions and failing to access the LMS without informing the program office), your candidature may be deferred until further action is determined.
- If you are struggling with your learning journey, please contact your Program Manager, who can provide support and guidance.
